SUBWAY TO CUT RUNNING TIME ON RAILWAY

Five Dead, Millions Crop Loss In Middle West

BIG BLIZZARD HITS MANY SECTIONS

Worst Storm in Quarter of Century, Claim; Trains Many Hours Late

CHICAGO, March 19.—Disrupted railroad traffic transportation, crippled wire communication, losses calculated into millions, zero weather and a death toll of at least five was left in the wake today of a severe blizzard, which swept the middle west.

The storm appeared over Montana, dipped into Colorado and Nebraska, swept eastward through Iowa and Illinois and is now whirling across Indiana into the southeast.

In several states the blizzard was referred to as "the worst storm in a quarter of a century."

The downward lurch of the thermometer brought the mercury in many cities to the zero mark. Sub-zero weather was predicted for tonight in the Great Lakes region. The mercury dropped 40 degrees in twenty-four hours.

Trains were reported stalled and hours behind time by railroads running into Chicago. Two engines were used on many trains to fight the huge snow drifts in the west. Trains running eastward from Chicago were cut in half in many instances, to avoid delays. Freight embargoes were announced by several railroads over certain sections of their lines.

Damage Is Heavy
Crops in western states were badly hit. The potato crop in Kansas was dealt a severe blow and the peach crop in Oklahoma sustained at least $2,000,000 damage.

Missouri recorded the coldest March weather in its history. Lake shipping in the Great Lakes region was delayed. Boats were blocked by ice.

Major league clubs, training in Texas, were forced to call off practice and keep the athletes off the wind-swept diamonds.

The death toll was at least five. At Rockford, Ill., an unidentified man was found dead in a snow bank. At Baxter, Colo., three children were overtaken by the storm and they perished. At Kutch, Colo., a man died of exposure.

Combination Storm
PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 19.—This city faced a combination of rain, snow and wind early today. At 7 o'clock the wind was rapidly increasing in velocity.

Iowa Under Snow
DES MOINES, Iowa, March 19.—Iowa awoke today under another blanket of drifted snow.

Trains over all lines are badly delayed or annulled. Rock Island lines from Kansas City and Minneapolis had trains extricated from the drift, but trains from the north and south were still snowbound.

Fear Reprisals for Irish Deportations

LONDON, March 19.—Extra forces of secret service agents were established over public buildings today by Scotland Yard as the result of the reports that the Irish were planning reprisals for the deportation of republican men and women sympathizers.

It was understood that the republican sympathizers in England were conspiring to blow up buildings.

HELSINGFORS, March 19.—The Russian council of commissars at Moscow has been informed that Nicolai Lenine is improving and that he probably will be able to take up his official duties before the end of the present year, said a dispatch from Moscow today.

The Russian war council has been summoned to consider questions arising from Lenine's illness.

OLYMPIA, Wash., March 19.—Yeggmen blew the safe of the Olympia postoffice early today and escaped with several thousand dollars' worth of stamps and approximately $500 in cash.

Reign of Terror At Essen After Shooting Of French Sentinel

By S. D. WEYER
For International News Service

ESSEN, March 19.—A virtual reign of terror broke out here today following the shooting of a French sentinel. Essen succeeded Buer as the scene of violence and tension. Dr. Vollner, a member of the reichstag, and a banker were seized by the French as hostages and rushed to Werden prison.

Shooting broke out near the main railway station. The depot is utilized by the French in their Paris-Essen traffic. The International News Service had ordered a motor car to go to Dortmund, where serious trouble was expected. He was refused by two chauffeurs, who said they had been attacked by French soldiers, following a shooting affray at the railway station. Their faces were cut and bruised and they claimed to have been beaten with rifle butts and whips.

Mystery surrounds the shooting. Attaches of the railway station said no German civilians had been seen in the neighborhood. Soldiers ran through the streets after the attack, looking for civilians. They attacked all Germans they encountered. A cook employed at the Handelshof hotel was arrested by a French officer after being wounded by a French soldier.

Five German chauffeurs took refuge in a little lunch wagon near the scene of the shooting, fearing to venture forth for two hours. The chauffeurs said their sole offense was "drinking coffee."

The French later arrested additional hostages, bringing the total up to eight. They included Herr Paenckel, Herr Brandeis and Herr Kammer, bankers; Postmaster Incolze and Finance Commissioner Blehner.

State Railroad Commission Approves G. & M. Line Plan

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19.—The Glendale & Montrose Railway Company, having petitioned the railroad commission for approval of an operating agreement between that company and the Los Angeles & Salt Lake Railroad Company for the electrification and joint operation of track facilities between Glendale and Glassell Park, Los Angeles county, the commission has approved the agreement in an order issued today.

Boys In Salvation Army Home Fight With Flames

SANTA ROSA, Cal., March 19.—The lives of 200 boy inmates of the Salvation Army home at Lytton, north of here, were endangered today when fire following an explosion, destroyed the structure.

The boys, following the fire alarm, left the dormitory. The efforts of the juvenile fire fighters directed by officials of the institution were directed at saving adjoining buildings when it was found the wooden school building could not be saved.

Colonel Sleeton, superintendent of the school, congratulated boys on their heroism in saving the balance of the institution after the fire had burned down.

Because of a previous disastrous fire three years ago, all precautions had been taken and the cause of the fire is a complete mystery. Colonel Sleeton said no explosive material was stored in the school and he could not account for the explosion which preceded the blaze.

Emergency school equipment will be rushed here and other buildings will serve as temporary headquarters until the burned buildings can be replaced.

Dr. George W. Stone, Noted As Educator, Passes Away

SACRAMENTO, March 19.—Dr. George W. Stone, internationally known educator and judge advocate of the United States navy during the civil war, died suddenly at his home in Santa Cruz early today, according to word received at the offices of the state department of education here. He was 83 years of age.

Dr. Stone was appointed a member of the California board of education in 1913 and was a member of the educational body at the time of his death.

From 1889 to 1895 Dr. Stone was national bank examiner, resigning from that position to become a Unitarian minister. In 1911 he was elected mayor of Santa Cruz and served in that capacity until the latter part of 1913.

Japanese Factions in Clash; Call Troops

TOKIO, March 19.—The shouting of "eta," meaning "beggar" at a bride entering a temple at Nara by an anti-socialist crowd has unloosed the socialist ire of the entire eta class of that vicinity and tonight officials of the district were calling upon the minister of war at Tokio to rush troops to the classes.

Extras of Tokio papers report numerous casualties and state police are being rushed from Osaka to Nara. A report from Kyoto said the fighting had quieted down at 4 o'clock, the etas retreating with plans to stage a night attack.

According to advices received here the wedding was broken up and instead an armed clash occurred, the etas being armed with guns and the local police officials of Nara using swords to quell the attacking mob.

The clash today is the outcome of nation-wide campaign believed to be backed by the socialists, which has had as its purpose the elimination of class distinctions.

"The child jumped out in front of my car," stated Mrs. Alexander, "I put on both brakes and stopped so quickly that the car in the rear ran into me."

The accident occurred in the 800 block on East Colorado street about 5:45 Sunday afternoon. The automobile was going west at the time.

Damage to Mr. Lincoln's car is estimated at $100.

DARE DEATH AT AIRPORT DEDICATION

Many Stunts at Big Rodeo Provide Thrills; Army and Navy Planes Present

GLENDALE airport Saturday afternoon was formally opened with an air rodeo which, from all angles, was regarded as a tremendous success.

For the occasion, the air was transformed into a dare-devil's paradise. Over a score of airplanes made the field their headquarters. Frequently as many as a dozen of them were in motion simultaneously.

Aviator Earl Daugherty of Long Beach was the cause of many exclamations of astonishment on the part of the spectators. He commenced his "stunt" by pulling one wing over, turning upside down, and then making four loops. At the end of the fourth loop, his plane did a barrel roll, followed by a tail spin—during which spectators held their breath. Then his plane did a vertical reversal, three or four wing-overs, and glided toward the ground upside down. A short distance above terra firma the plane was suddenly righted again and came to a safe landing.

Flirt With Death

Auggie Peddler was Aviator Daugherty's "stunt rider." On one of the ascensions, the plane rose while he was hanging by his knees. It returned while he was in the same position, and "Auggie" raised himself just in time to avoid having his head dashed against the ground. During the flight, he had clambered all over the plane and had done everything except dive off.

Both army and navy planes took part in the rodeo.

Planes from the naval airport at San Diego were in charge of the following officers: Commodore A. W. Marshall, Commander M. B. McComb, Lieutenant Commander A. S. Montgomery, Lieutenant Commander N. B. Chase, Lieutenant George T. Cudahy, Lieutenant Harry Campmann, Lieutenant M. F. Shoofel, Lieutenant F. C. Kake and Ensign T. Richards.

Planes from Clover Field, Santa Monica, were in charge of the following army officers: Lieutenant Corliss C. Mosely, Lieutenant William Fry, Lieutenant Roy S. Gradle, Lieutenant W. A. White, and Lieutenant Kenneth Montee.

Crashes to Ground

Excitement mounted to fever heat toward the close of the meet, when a plane was unable to land safely and from a distance of about twenty-five feet crashed to the ground head first, burying its nose in the sandy soil of a plowed field. Pulliam & Kiefer's ambulance, Motorcycle Officer George M. Booth and everybody on the field hurried to the scene just in time to assist Aviator J. B. Hill of Los Angeles and "Bob" Spence of Pasadena out of the cockpit—without a scratch.

The plane had been about to land at the east end of the field. When it was a few feet above the ground, two pedestrians started to walk across the field. To avoid hitting them, Pilot Hill made an attempt to force his plane to continue its flight on a horizontal line. The engine failed to respond and a sudden crash to the ground was the result. Damage to the plane amounted to about $150. The plane belongs to the Photo May Company of Pasadena.

The last flight of the afternoon was made by W. B. Kinner of Glendale in his Kinner Airstar. Dr. T. C. Young's plane was piloted by H. R. Darling of 1519 South Brand boulevard, while R. E. Remelin alternated in controlling the two planes of L. C. Brand.

'BLACK SHIRT' IS BEING PUT OVER WORLD

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The mantle of the Italian fascisti has been flung over the entire world. Official confirmation was given at the Italian embassy here today to an International News Service dispatch from New York to that effect today. Branches of the "black shirt" organization, it was stated, are being established in other countries.

DENIES CLAIMS OF WORLD WAR AVIATORS

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The supreme court of the United States denied claims of world war aviators to increased pay for such service as allowed by congress when the flier left another branch of the army service to become an aviator. This claim was denied by the war department, but upheld by the court of claims. A test case was brought by Nelson W. Rider, an army aviator, who enlisted at Kansas City, Mo., in the signal corps.

RECOVERING FROM HIS FAST OF 13 DAYS

BOSTON, March 19.—Physicians at the psychopathic hospital today announced that Nicolai Sacco apparently will suffer little effects from his hunger strike of thirteen days. WESTERN PIPE COMPANY SUFFERS $43,000 LOSS

SEATTLE, March 19.—Fanned by a heavy wind, flames today destroyed two buildings of the Western Pipe & Steel Company with a total loss, including contents, of $43,000. In a strenuous two-hour fight firemen prevented the blaze from extending to the main building. The cause of the fire is unknown. The plant of the company was formerly a part of the big Patterson-McDonald shipyard, a scene of feverish activity when America was building her "bridge of ships" in war time.

Hotel Manager Under Arrest For Shooting His Brother

SACRAMENTO, March 19.—E. J. Bedell, manager of the Hotel Clunie of this city and one of the most prominent hotel men in the state, was arrested today following the shooting of his brother, Milton Bedell, who is said to be in a critical condition.

The shooting followed a quarrel in which Milton Bedell is said to have attempted to break into his brother's room.

"Oh, brother, you've got me this time," the wounded man is said to have cried as he fell to the floor with a bullet in his right abdomen.

Guests of the hotel rushed to the scene. The wounded man, according to witnesses, said "good bye, don't forget me," and relapsed into unconsciousness. The older Bedell surrendered to the police. "This is the climax of ten years of hell," the hotel man said as he was led away to the police station. "During that time I have given Milton between $50,000 and $70,000. He has spent it all, worried our mother greatly, and ruined my business."

Both of the Bedells are young men and well known in club circles here.

Battle Of Bobbed Hair Under Way At Sacramento

SACRAMENTO, March 19.—Locks that touch scissors shall never touch mine, is evidently the stand Senator Edgar Hurley takes on women shearing their shimmering tresses, for he has introduced a bill into the whirling maelstrom of proposed legislation that, if passed, would make it impossible for beauty parlors to bob women's hair.

The bill is having plenty of opposition, from the men as well as the women. Senator A. Burlingame Johnson has taken a decided stand in favor of feminine ears being allowed their place in the sun.

While Miss Anna Cayvan, Los Angeles, president of the Southern California Hairdressers' Association, is here lobbying against Senator Hurley's barber bill, which, it seems, will force hair-cutting, along with a lot of other industries, into the home.

By the way, the bill says nothing against men patronizing women's beauty parlors. So, there!

FAST SERVICE ON PACIFIC ELECTRIC SYSTEM

Pershing Square Project to Aid Glendale, Asserts Company Official

GLENDALE and Los Angeles will be linked with a twenty-five minute running schedule on all Pacific Electric trains, if the $4,500,000 Pershing square subway project goes through.

"Glendale will benefit greatly in the event this rapid transit plan submitted by the Los Angeles city planning commission is adopted," states O. A. Smith, passenger traffic manager of the Pacific Electric system.

"From ten to twelve minutes will be cut from the running time of all trains. As the running time is now thirty-five minutes, a twenty-five minute schedule will be the first benefit Glendale will derive."

"When it is considered that the present rush-hour jams make it impossible for our trains to adhere to their thirty-five minute schedule, the advantage of a subway system will be apparent—for such a system would at once relieve the jam and enable us to run on time, which, with the reduced schedule, would mean trains to and from Glendale and Los Angeles in twenty-five minutes or less of actual time."

Saving of Time
"As it takes nearly fifty minutes to get trains through at present, during the rush hours, the saving effected under the Pershing square plan is obvious. It will mean that Glendale commuters can leave for their offices fifteen minutes earlier in the morning and get home a half hour earlier at night—or a total saving of forty-five minutes a day that can be added to the time spent in the family circle."

The Pershing square rapid transit subway plan had its inception

Colonel Everington States His Position

Friends of Colonel J. W. Everington have been urging him to become a candidate for city council. Other friends have been urging him to take the secretaryship of the Chamber of Commerce, which James Rhoades has resigned. To both sets of friends Colonel Everington has said "No!" However, it was suggested to him that he run for councilman and also seek the secretaryship of the Chamber of Commerce. To this he said "Yes!"

"I am willing to run for the City Council and to accept the position of secretary of the Chamber of Commerce," said Colonel Everington today. "I am willing to work for all of Glendale, not any one faction or set, and if the directors of the Chamber of Commerce see fit, I will accept the secretaryship and also be a candidate for the City Council. Understand, there must be no strings tied to me. I must be left entirely free to work for the whole of Glendale."

LOS ANGELES, March 19.—Three daring bandits today held up and robbed Clarence Vale, a collector for the Sam Seelig Company of $30,000 on Boylston avenue, while scores of motorists passed unaware the crime was in progress. The bandits were armed with shot guns and used a large touring car in which to make their escape.

Vale had just completed making collections from seven of the Seelig stores in various parts of the city when the bandit car drew alongside his machine, forced him to stop, and leave his automobile. After Vale left the car, the bandits took the satchel containing the money and sped away. Vale hailed a passing motorist who took him to the police station where he reported the robbery.

Endocrinology Sharks Wear Paths Round Bases in Sunday's Game

It rained baseballs yesterday morning at the Park and San Fernando grounds, the Harrower laboratory nine proving altogether too much for Uncle Sam's carriers of the local postoffice.

The final tally was 21 for the chemists and a round, unoccupied goose-egg for the postal boys.

"Strike three, you're out!" was heard to emanate from the ump's vocal mechanism so frequently that it was suggested by some wag a phonograph be drafted into service as a substitute.

Eud Smith, who had charge of the Harrower artillery, was mainly responsible for the debacle, hurling such Jovian thunderbolts that the carriers became paralyzed with dread at the very thought of having to connect with them—and when bat and ball occasionally did connect, Fisher and Smith out among the daisies were unkind enough to stop their travels forthwith.

D. Ripley "hisself" was one of the pallbearers.

A Social Event

Wedding at Home
Miss Edith Schuyler became the bride of Herbert H. Brown Saturday night, March 17, 1923, at a ceremony taking place at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Schuyler, at 330 West Ivy street.

Rev. C. M. Calderwood, pastor of the First Congregational church, was the officiant, reading the marriage service at 8 o'clock before a company of seventy-five relatives and friends.

The Schuyler home was most beautifully and artistically arranged for the wedding, arrangements of spring fruit blossoms decorating the various rooms. Long strands of ivy covered the archway between the living and dining rooms, where the bridal party stood for the ceremony.

Just at the hour set for the service Joseph Rhodes accompanied by Miss Myra Johns, sang "At Dawning" (Cadmian) and "Because" (d'Harleot).

For the entrance of the bride party Mrs. Henry Brown, pianist, and Thurston Harshman, violinist, both of Los Angeles, played the Mendelssohn march.

The first members of the bridal party to enter were Misses Margaret Frazee of San Diego and Millicent Alvord of Pomona, girlhood friends and schoolmates of the bride. Miss Frazee wore blue taffeta and Miss Alvord pink taffeta. Each wore a bandeau of opalescent pearls and each carried an arm bouquet of pink, white and lavender sweetpeas.

Next came the maid of honor, Miss Lois Schuyler, the bride's sister. She wore a gown of ivory charmeuse and georgette and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses and fern.

The next to appear was tiny little Miss Mary Jane McPail, a picture of loveliness in her orchid organ gown, made with scallops and trimmed with lace. She carried a cunning little basket filled with green blossoms, which she scattered before the bride.

Miss Schuyler presented a most pleasing picture as she entered the room with her father, E. L. Schuyler. She wore a bridal gown of ivory crepe meteor, simply made and trimmed with pearls, and a shower corsage of silver ribbon. A bandeau of orange blossoms and pink roses adorned her hair. She carried a bouquet of orchids, lilies of the valley and fern.

Mr. Brown was attended by his brother, Henry A. Brown, of Los Angeles.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held, and after congratulations were exchanged the bride and groom refreshments were served.

The bride's cake was in white built in three layers with a miniature bride and groom standing under a tiny arch and wedding bell. Mrs. Brown cut the cake, which was served with white brick ice cream with a green wedding bell in the center.

Katherine Sooy, a cousin of the bride, and members of the K. K. club, of which she is a member, served.

An interesting feature of the wedding date was that it was the twenty-sixth wedding anniversary of Mrs. Brown's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Schuyler, and also the wedding anniversary of one of her aunts.

Mrs. Schuyler wore a gown of heavy blue and taupe silk and carried twenty-six red rose buds and fern.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. Brown's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Brown, and relatives of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Frazee and family of San Diego; Earl Roudon of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Quinlan of Santa Monica; Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Auer and Miss Beas Wadley of El Monte; Mrs. E. T. Hirth and sons, Hugh, Edgar and Richard; Mrs. Menhenick and Miss Frances Smith of Pasadena; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Davis of Long Beach; Gertrude and Charles DuBois of Long Beach.

Included in the countless wedding gifts received by the bride was a Dodge touring car, a gift from Mr. Brown, and late in the evening they left by motor for Pasadena and Riverside, planning to leave today for the Grand Canyon, where they will spend two or three weeks.

Upon their return they will reside in Los Angeles, where Mr. Brown is in the fruit and produce business with his father.

Mrs. Brown and her family have been residents of Glendale for over ten years, and it was in the Glendale schools that she received the major part of her education. She graduated from the Glendale Union High school in 1921 and has since attended the Southern Branch of the University of California.

Mr. Brown's family are former Glendale residents, having moved seven years ago from their home in the Glendale district to Los Angeles.

Luncheon Success
Social life in the new Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse was formally initiated Saturday when the non-section members entertained with a St. Patrick's day luncheon, card and Mah Jongg affair, receiving their successes by adding $300 to the amount they pledged for furnishing the lounge room.

The affair was one of the most brilliant luncheons the club members have ever enjoyed and was made doubly enjoyable because it was the first event of the kind to take place in the club's new home.

Being a St. Patrick's day affair, of course green predominated in the decorations and appointments for the luncheon. The tables were arranged for the luncheon in the banquet room, the table of honor, for the president and board and honored guests, occupying the space between the Italian tea room and the banquet room.

Streamers of green crepe paper ran the full length of the tables, while Cherokee rose branches and sprays of orange blossoms were further decorations. Green candles in glass holders flickered on the tables during the luncheon hour.

Hostesses were members of the non-section unit and Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, chairman of ways and means. They were assisted by a group of high school girls, who, in dainty white frocks, green shamrock aprons and caps, served the luncheon.

Mrs. Daniel Campbell, club president, was specially honored, Ireland being her native country. In complimenting her, the non-section women presented her with a huge bouquet of green tinted white sweetpeas.

Another compliment was received by Mrs. Montgomery, who was presented with a large basket of varied spring flowers, a gift from the club. It was presented by Mrs. Campbell, who in a few words expressed the appreciation of officers and members for the devoted and efficient services of Mrs. Montgomery as first vice-president and chairman of ways and means.

After lunch and games and Mah Jongg were enjoyed, twenty prizes being awarded for high scores.

In appreciation to the high school girls who served the non-section members are to give a dance Monday night, April 2, in the banquet room, following the concert by the Stanford Glee club in the auditorium. The high school girls will be special guests, as will the university men.

At the close of the luncheon, Mrs. Montgomery announced the donations from merchants that had made the luncheon possible. Among those mentioned were E. Thompson, grocery; Ralphs grocery; Jensen's and Fancy bakeries; Calla Lily creamery; Jessup's dairy; Botts' Book store and Chase & Sanborn Coffee company.

There is to be a meeting of the non-section unit Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the clubhouse.

Masquerade Dance
The members of the Junior Dance Assembly held their regular meeting Saturday night in the Chamber of Commerce hall and enjoyed an evening's dancing in masquerade costumes. The room was gaily decorated for the occasion, with streamers of rainbow hues from the center of the ceiling to the walls, making a bright setting for the vari-colored costumes in which the young people were dressed.

The winners in the prize waltz were Robert Eastman and Marjorie Hart, and Fred Saiter and Vivian Nay, the girls receiving duplicate boxes of candy, as the judges' decision was a tie.

Patronesses for the evening were Mrs. Howard Walker, chairman; Mrs. H. E. Betz; Mrs. H. E. Betz; Mrs. Richardson of Los Angeles; Mrs. J. C. Clausen of Eagle Rock.

Sarah Chandler wore a beautiful fancy period costume of red and white; Vivian Nay, golden hair, wore a costume of red Ridinghood; Bonnie Jean Lockwood; Irish shamrock; Barbara Kranz, evening dress; Lucile Harris, Beryl Goodale, Alice Hill, Turkish costumes; Leona Hunt, Irish peasant; Mabel Todd, Marjorie Temple, Elizabeth Walker, Chinese; Lucile Beach; peasant; Katherine Bender, peasant; Amy Bainbridge, gypsy; Jane Richardson, Alice Ducey, Frances Best, Pierrette; Robert Hatch, Dallas Kaibach, Eugene Wernette, Hal Eckles, Horace Brown, James Frey, Carleton Walker, Henry Grace, Jack Traflet were in gay yama-yama costumes of different bright colors.

Shower Affair
Mrs. Alvin Brown of 102 South Brand boulevard, who, until recently, was Miss Josephine Emery of 329 North Kenwood street, was the guest of honor Saturday afternoon at a combination linen and china shower, given by Mrs. Agnes and Earl Caldwell at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Caldwell of 326 West Wilson avenue. The affair was given in the nature of a St. Patrick's day party, the decorations and favors being carried out in the characteristic emerald green.

The first part of the afternoon was spent in playing the novel game, "Farmers' Love Letters." After a series of spirited contests the award for first honors was given to Mrs. Owen C. Emery, who in turn presented it to the guest of honor.

Following the game the guests gathered around two large tables in the dining room, each table supporting a large green Irish rose in the center, from which thin green satin streamers extended to the individual places. Each guest found a dainty favor attached to the ribbon in front of her place, the one designated for Mrs. Brown disclosing the following verses:

Ever since old time began,
The dearest treasure known to man
Has been beneath the hat:
A woman's face, lustrous hair,
A man's fine mind and smile
Lodges there.

Now, because Fate sentenced that
This maxim dear would e'er be true.
In the living room you'll find a hat
That holds a treasure just for you.

Upon following the directions the charming honored guest found a mammoth green hat, the contents of which consisted of numerous linen and china gifts from friends and admirers.

The guests included Misses Genevieve Talliferro, Beatrice Vocke, Dorothy Goketunst, Bertha Wheeler, Louise Hollenbeck, Eleanor Sawyer, Olive Bell Emerson and Virginia Huntley; Mesdames E. U. Emery, Orta Brown, Owen C. Emery, Jack Eaton and W. S. Caldwell.

SCOUTS TO TAKE FOUR DAY HIKE

Mount Gleason Is Objective
Point of Outing to Start Monday

The Boy Scouts of the Verdugo Hills District are going to take a pioneer hike to the summit of Mount Gleason during Easter vacation, according to plans just completed by the camping committee of which Frank C. Ayers is chairman.

Four days are to be spent on this adventurous hike to the historic Indian outlook which was used in the early days of California to spot immigrant teams as they slowly wended their way down the San Fernando Valley.

The Scouts will leave Brand and Broadway at 7:00 o'clock Monday morning, March 26, in automobiles which will convey them to the mouth of the Big Tujunga Canyon. From there they will hike to the top of Mount Gleason over the government trail via Trail Canyon. As Mount Gleason is only nine miles from the mouth of the Big Tujunga the Scouts expect to reach the summit the first day. They will spend one day here and will then wend their way down the beautiful North Fork of Mill Creek Canyon. The last day they plan to hike down the Big Tujunga where they will be met by automobiles which will bring them home.

Only Scouts in good standing in their troops will be permitted to take this interesting hike and then only by making proper application which must be approved both by their parents and the Scoutmaster.

Each troop will arrange its own transportation and each Scout will take his own blankets and food. There will be no charge for this trip.

The hike will be in charge of Scout Executive Harold Benner and several scout leaders.

U. S. Helps Hawaiians To Wipe Out Goats

HONOLULU, March 19.—You can get most people's goats for nothing by a little time and kidding, but it is going to cost the Territory of Hawaii $80,000, provided it can also enlist the aid of Uncle Sam's soldiers and marines, with their guns and ammunition, to "get" the wild goats on the island of Hawaii. The next Territorial Legislature will be asked to appropriate the necessary funds.

Large districts of the island of Hawaii are so overrun by wild goats, according to A. L. C. Atkinson, of the Territorial Board of Forestry and Agriculture, that the forests are being destroyed, watersheds ruined and a serious problem created for plantations and ranches.

In a big drive last summer approximately 7,000 wild goats on Hawaii Island were killed. It is estimated that there are still 25,000 nannies and billies at large.

Wise buyers know how hard it is to get a well-made suit of clothes. See us. F. Minden, 322 Broadway.—Advertisement.

Contrasts Local Conditions
With Those Prevailing
Way Back East

The cities of Glendale, California, and Harvard, Illinois, are widely removed from each other in the measurement of miles, but in spirit they are closely related, for there are many Glendallians who were formerly Harvardians and many Harvardians who still reside in Harvard but in Glendale.

Among the Harvardians recently visiting Glendale was W. H. Ward, supervisor of that city, who, with Mrs. Ward, has been wintering on the Pacific coast. Mr. and Mrs. Ward were charmed with the beauty of the land of sunshine and flowers and wrote to the folks back home countless letters telling of the beauties of the west and of the spirit of progressiveness and future possibilities of southern California.

During their stay they visited at the Frank L. Dodge home at 1264 South Glendale avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Dodge are former Harvardians, but now loyal Glendallians, and upon Mr. Ward's request, Mr. Dodge wrote a letter to the Harvard Herald praising southern California. Mr. Dodge, who is now 77 years of age, is a former editor and publisher. Mr. Dodge wrote in part:

Reviews Old Times
"In 1846 I took my first gulp of what Oliver Wendell Holmes called the 'gaseous groggy air' that is, I was born, a native son of Dunham, MacHenry county, Illinois. Today I have had a visitor from the old Illinois in the person of W. H. Ward of Harvard."

"Harvard, Illinois, and Glendale, California, are several steps apart, but my visitor today was very close; close in the swirl of banished years; close in memories of cherished friendships; close in the review of past experiences and delights and renewals of bygone days."

"There is quite a squad of Harvard and former MacHenry county people in and around Los Angeles, now enjoying the glorious climate, which so far this winter has been free from storm and low mercury. Just gentle rains, charming sunlight and blooming flowers. Enjoying these conditions we met W. H. Ward and wife, Frank Wells and wife, Homer Whipple and wife, Miss Adeline Brainard, John King, E. H. Stanley, Al Haffner, Fred Wyant and wife, John D. Pringle and wife and G. N. Barber and wife."

"Then there is the stay-home list, such as: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lanning, Ed Senger, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wells, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Fuller with sons and grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Helm, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kirk, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kirk, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Martin and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Wells, Mr. and Mrs. B. Cronk and family, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Smith and family, Mr. and Mrs. R. Phalen, Mr. and Mrs. Nate Allen, Roy Wellington, Mrs. C. L. Ward and four sons and two daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Dodge and family of children and grandchildren, Frank L. Dodge and family, G. A. Dodge and family, Mrs. G. W. Clute and family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gay, Mr. and Mrs. Roy White and family, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Hills and children and grandchildren, and Mrs. John White and family."

What of California?
"There is one name that stands out prominently as a representative of the Dunham neighborhood: that is Mrs. Mary Allen Hills, who is now 90 years old, and the sole survivor of the large and beloved family of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Allen. Also, there is Mrs. Dolly Wells Martin, who is the sole survivor of the prominent Dunham pioneer family of Jonathan and Katie Wells."

"Well, what of California, anyway? Why is it attracting millions to its sunlit shores? And, to use some honest comparisons, there is ample room for all who may come. Consider, my friends, that California has a coast line on the Pacific ocean of 770 miles; if California's area were laid on the Atlantic coast it would cover seven states from North Carolina north, including New York and Pennsylvania. Consider again that California has single counties that would cover five such states as Rhode Island, or three such states as Delaware. But there is another consideration of vast importance, and it is this: the population of New York City alone is over 2,000,000 more than the whole population of California? Consider, again, that the population of the three cities, New York, Philadelphia and Chicago, is 4,291,830 more than that of the seven Pacific states combined."

"As long as this disparity of population exists, the words of our brilliant Horace Greeley, 'Go west, young man, go west,' will be timely and sound."

Property Assessment

Editor The Evening News:—What right has the city to assess property a mile and over from Los Feliz road? If so, was Los Feliz to help repair West Elk and other streets?

Why were citizens with seventy-five-foot frontage on Vine street assessed $2.08, while on each side of them fifty-foot frontages the same distance from Central avenue were assessed $5.7?

COMMENT That's All

On Visit To University
Growth Of Institution
Motor World Development
Boost Your Home Town

By Gil A. Cowan

AS reported in International News dispatches, members of the California legislature received a liberal education in their visit to the University of California at Berkeley, although some complaint was registered about this type of propaganda.

Perhaps it was publicity that guided the efforts of the university authorities in preparing a fitting reception for the sons of the state, but it was a commendable effort, after all, for legislators sometimes know too little of the subject with which they are dealing.

It was the pleasure of the writer to go on this junket and enjoy with Assemblyman and Mrs. Weller of Glendale and the 257 others, the sights to be seen around an institution of learning. It may be that the students considered we were sights, but, be that as it may, one must envy the youth of California the opportunity afforded them in the state university, its branch, or any of its extension work.

Surprising was the statement made by Lieut.-Governor C. C. Young, an alumnus who graduated thirty-five years ago when the total registration was only 306, that today the University of California ranks first in the nation with 75,000 enrolled in courses.

Of course, this figure includes all of those at Berkeley, at the Los Angeles branch and others actively engaged in extension work. And it demonstrates California's demand upon institutions of higher learning.

It is the growth of the state demonstrated in the crowded campus. It is the California spirit that greets you every step of the way. The high character of the student body typifies the homes from whence each member comes. And it is pleasing to note that every other one and more come from south of the Tehachapi.

With the establishing of a third year course at the Southern branch more and more of student life will be revealed to Hollywood and Glendale and other sections favored by their proximity to the institution.

Saturday and automobiles are synonymous in the columns of The Glendale Evening News. As you read the trend of development in the motor world do you not stop and wonder? Also, do you not consider the value of the good highways?

More than 400 miles of state highway are located in Los Angeles county, according to current authority, and county and city paving gives thousands of miles of boulevards to the owner of a motorcar.

It had indeed seem wise to tax each gallon of gasoline two cents for the maintenance of these thoroughfares, and even more if necessary.

And, for the benefit of the motor tourist, who has become common, it would be equally wise to vote additional bonds for concrete highway system to the borders of the state.

At the same time efficiency must be practiced by the road engineers and petty community jealousies put aside in gaining the most needed roads.

There seems to be general disapproval at this time of blanket bond issues. It is a bad practice. Los Angeles recognizes this fact in repairing its city charter.

A legal authority of the metropolitan area informs me that it is impossible to put over a complete new charter because there is sufficient discussion on various issues to block its passage. But by the subtle introduction of one or more amendments at a time the same practical purposes can be accomplished.

"Where's Glendale?" was the question asked by a San Francisco solon. Was it ignorance or lack of advertising on the part of this city? We are inclined to suspect both.

The general adoption of name plates bearing the word "Glendale" for all automobiles is one step in the right direction. But that should not be all. Every citizen should consistently boost his home town.

British Peer Yearns
For Good Melodrama

LONDON, March 19.—The drama and literature of the present age is all wrong. "The age is that of pilules and paragraphs," declares Lord Colwyn. English literature has reached such a stage that Members of Parliament get the most of their entertainment in reading detective stories. The stage has gone to pot, this peer avers. The London stage is full of sickening sex problem plays and all sorts of dirtiness.

"You do not get much now in the way of fine literature," Lord Colwyn said. "Everything seems to be running on short paragraphs—short stories and paragraphs instead of leading articles."

"The plays in London—I am sick of the lot of those they call sex-problem plays. There is always some man poaching on another man's wife, and the whole story centers on that, and it is all a sort of dirtiness."

"I'd like a good melodrama, where the hero is a fine chap and the villain a dark-complexioned man, with twisted mustache. And nothing gives me more joy than to see the villain at the exciting moment drop down the hoist and get killed."

SET NEW RECORD FOR INCOME TAX

L. A. Revenue District Runs
Ahead of Others in
First Quarter

"Figures sometimes lie, but ours don't," for the $7,795,632 we collected for the first quarter's income tax is deposited in the bank," said Collector of Internal Revenue Rex Goodell today.

Collector Goodell pointed out that while the Los Angeles district gained $3,206,113 on total collections of $7,795,632, the Manhattan District of New York, according to a statement of Secretary Mellon, gained only $3,000,000 on a turnover of $46,000,000. Chicago ran even. Undoubtedly, the collector declared, Los Angeles has set a new record for the entire country.

The showing made by Los Angeles is even more remarkable when it is stated that one taxpayer who paid a tax running around $2,000,000 last year moved its headquarters from the district and this tax, therefore, did not enter into the collections for the first quarter of this year.

More To Be Added
In addition to the collections already reported, it is estimated that $5,500,000 is still on hand in the opened mail. This mail is being opened and money taken from it deposited at the rate of $500,000 per day. It is figured that the entire mail supply will be opened and the money deposited by Tuesday night.

Revenue officers point out that although facing an income loss of $6,700,000 per annum, due to increase in exemptions in favor of taxpayers of small incomes, the gain of more than three million dollars in the first quarter's collections would indicate that the loss would be entirely wiped out.

Plan Buffer State to Halt War in Balkans

SOFIA, March 19.—A Macedonian republic looms as a possibility as a buffer against further Balkan wars.

The General Macedonian Congress, which has recently been in session here, has achieved a notable work by launching a movement, endorsed by all Macedonians of Serbia, Bulgaria and Greek Macedonia, for an autonomous Macedonian fatherland. Religious differences have been cast aside, and Macedonians have joined together in this movement, which, it is hoped, will eventually accomplish a buffer state, with Salonika as its capital—a state which will act as a link between warring neighbor nations which have been dismembered and ruined by continuous Balkan conflicts.

This movement may be likened to the Irish movement, for it means that two million Macedonians, whose schools and churches have suffered from suppression, are now determined no longer to remain passive, but are resolved to work for the right of self-determination and the privilege of establishing their own government.

The movement cannot achieve its purpose quickly and there will be many difficulties to overcome, but, in view of the fact that the Macedonians themselves have cast aside their religious differences, these seem to be substantial hopes.

The movement is under the direction of the Macedonian Union, which comprises all racial elements, including Turks, Albanians and Wallachians.

Even some of the older Macedonian revolutionists who have been bitter fighting men, and their lives have come to the support of the non-militaristic movement.

Rumor of Bus War Stirs Stolid London

LONDON, March 19.—Wars, rumors of wars and threats of wars are becoming stale topics in London conversation, but occasionally some new "war scare" comes along that arouses interest.

For the moment the popular "war" is London's "bus war."

The General Omnibus company has for years operated its busses on the streets of London without competition. In the last six months at least four independent bus lines have opened up in competition, and now there is a "bus war" on.

The new busses find that they have an unwelcome escort. For every independent bus operating on the streets there is a flotilla of General Omnibus company busses to act as escort. The independent bus men find themselves sandwiched in between a fleet of big red busses, and he has traffic troubles and is generally beaten to the passenger stop, so that his customers are few.

Public sympathy seems to be in favor of the independent busses, however, and they are managing to exist.

Lord Ashfield, head of the London transportation combine, who once "smashed baggage" in America, is quite excited and peevish about the "bus war." He warmly defends the tactics which his company has put in force to wipe out competing busses.

"Small omnibus companies have never shared the burden of the day," Lord Ashfield says. "They add nothing to the transport facilities of London. They seek the dense routes of traffic and run their omnibuses with a view to serving their own selfish interests. The private omnibus owner has less responsibility than a taxi driver. It must be a survival of the fittest."

CAMELS AGITATE TAX COLLECTORS

Honolulu May Get Revenue If Shriners' Pets Are Proven Tame

HONOLULU, T. H., March 19.—When is a camel wild?

That is the question which recently agitated official circles here to the accompanying tune of $250. It will have to be paid as a tax to the federal government by the city and county of Honolulu if it is decided that the three "wild" animals which are the subject of the tax controversy were domesticated until they came to Honolulu to appear in a Shriners' parade and later, as gifts from the local temple, to grace the Zoo in Kapiolani Park.

The same amount will have to be paid into the federal treasury through Harry E. Murray, collector of customs at this port, by Aloha Temple, of the Mystic Shrine if it is proved that the three "ships of the desert" and proposed new national pets, broken to labor and domesticated in their own country, were wild some time before leaving the scene of their domestication and coming to Honolulu.

Wild Ones Untaxed
The watchful government distinguishes between wild and domestic animals when it comes to obtaining revenue from them. Wild ones get in free, but it costs the domesticated beasts 10 per cent of their valuation to leave their respective native habitats to be curiosities in the United States or its possessions.

Mayor Wilson of Honolulu insists the animals are wild and as such are not subject to taxation. Inspector Murray, himself a prominent member of Aloha Temple, bearing in mind that, following the Shriners' parade the mayor actually rode around town on one of the beasts in the triumphal procession to the zoo, after the presentation of the animals to the city—insists they are domesticated.

Mayor Wilson addressed a letter to the treasury department calling attention to the fact that the animals are not here for any commercial purpose whatsoever. The treasury department replied that if the mayor can prove that the animals were not domesticated before coming to Honolulu, "the claim will be given due consideration."

The mayor insists they were wild when they arrived and are still that way. In the meantime Honoluluans who preserved newspaper clippings of photographs of the mayor and a couple of the city fathers—i. e., supervisors and aldermen—tiding the aforesaid wild animals are chuckling.

BUILDING TWELVE BUNGALOW HOMES

Glendale Contractors Will Erect New Houses at
Cost of $60,000

EAGLE ROCK, March 19.—A building project that will not only be another step in the development of the eastern part of the city, but will materially increase the housing capacity of Eagle Rock, is the erection of twelve stucco and tile-roof bungalows, which has begun on East Colorado boulevard and Glen Court, on what is known as the Reeves property.

H. A. Michel and Frank Michel, of 225 Dryden street, Glendale, are the owners and builders. The total cost of the bungalows is estimated at $60,000. These houses will be built on both sides of a hundred-foot-wide court street, and will be modern in every respect, and up-to-date in every feature of bungalow building. The location is unsurpassed and will further enhance the style of architecture chosen.

Plan New Church
M. T. Lee, G. E. Arbogast, E. D. Ball, Shirley Allen and H. I. Duffan are the members of the building committee elected by the Congregational church to formulate definite and complete plans, which will be later placed before the church for its endorsement. The church at present will seat only one-half of its membership, and a new edifice is the only way of solving the problem.

The Twentieth Century club has organized a drama section, with Mrs. J. B. Squire as chairman. This section will meet at 8 o'clock on the second Tuesday and at 8 o'clock on the fourth Tuesday of each month.

Mrs. Ellen Galpin of 314 West Adams street was the director of the children's entertainment at Exposition park Saturday night. Mr. and Mrs. D. Kaplan and their son and daughter, Walter and Evelyn, of 122 East Stanley avenue, motored to Long Beach on Sunday.

Loss of Phone Number Spoils Wedding Trip

NEW YORK, March 19.—Mrs. James McGregor of Great Falls, Mont., bride of five months, whose disappearance started a city-wide search at the request of her husband was found in Brooklyn where she had been visiting some friends, it was said.

At the Continental hotel, where the bridal couple registered when they came here to celebrate a belated honeymoon, it was said McGregor had received a telephone call from his wife saying she was "all right" and not to worry, but that in his excitement the husband had forgotten to get her address or telephone number.

He later checked out of the hotel after being informed where, in Brooklyn, he could meet Mrs. McGregor.

PARIS, March 19.—Sauntering was buried beneath the debris, and when his wife extricated him he was dead.

An epidemic of suicide has broken out in the Var region and principally among old persons. Last week Adrien Fabre, aged 65, drowned himself at Bayols. Elzard Daumas, 71 years old, shot himself at Toulon; Pierre Delmas, aged 60, was asphyxiated at Seillons, and Etienne Ardaud, 77, hanged himself at Castellet.

Le Petit Parisien has just published a few statistics about the French and American telephone systems: In France a subscriber must wait a month after signing his contract before he can have the use of his telephone; in the United States eight days suffice. In France a slight repair demands at least two days; in America a few hours.

In France the percentage of wrong numbers, cut offs, etc., is at least 50 per cent of the total; in America about 7 per cent. In France one must wait from one to four hours to obtain an interurban communication; in the United States ten minutes. The inferiority comes from insufficient lines, poor and long-distance material and poor management.

Is a dog the true friend of man, after all? Parisians are beginning to wonder now that the statistical department of the city has just made the announcement that 712 persons in the city of Paris and 482 in the suburbs were bitten last year by some canine friend. Altogether 11,668 dogs were taken in the month of 1922, which were claimed by their owners and 11 handed to persons who wanted dogs.

TUNING AN INDUCTIVELY-COUPLED RECEIVER

In the past ten or fifteen articles we have discussed receivers, the properties of capacity and inductance and their relation to each other in radio, also traced the various circuits of a receiver and their component parts. We can now turn to the question of utilizing this knowledge and "tuning in" for results. We will assume that we have for this purpose a conventional inductively-coupled receiver, and as we have not yet arrived at the vacuum tube stage of these series of articles, we shall assume also that as a detector we will utilize a crystal detector of the type very common in use, one requiring no battery. This tuning is very simple, yet a very extraordinary process. At one moment no signals are received. Then by turning one or two small handles or knobs, signals or voices from a distant station are heard, coming from out of the intangible ether. How does this happen? What does the turning of the handle do? Why do signals get loud and strong alternately as the dials on the receiver are rotated this or that way.

These and a multitude of similar queries will occur to the mind of any imaginative person, studying a wireless receiver. To the

The GLENDALE The T. D. & L.

D. W. Griffith's "One Exciting Night," now showing at the Glendale Theatre, with Carol Dempster in the lead, offers a thrill, a chill and a hearty laugh.

"One Exciting Night" is a mystery drama, with just enough comedy to relieve the tense situation when the plot begins to thicken. For, while Mr. Griffith has departed from the heavy and spectacular, he has not failed to produce a picture, as usual with his efforts, that will live among the immortals of the silver screen.

The producer has left nothing undone to make this picture genuinely thrilling. Spooky hands, secret panels, shadows, darting figures, and many other suspense-producing devices have been adroitly employed.

"Oliver Twist," featuring famous and lovable little Jackie Coogan, continues at the T. D. & L. Theatre today and tomorrow.

The story, which everybody knows is by Charles Dickens, exerts a universal appeal that is enhanced by the wonderful histrionic work of this amazing child actor. Directed by Frank Lloyd and released by First National, it represents the very peak of picture-making in the United States—and that means in the world.

Here is the cast—Jackie Coogan (Oliver Twist), Lon Chaney (Fagin), Gladys Brockwell (Nancy Sikes), George Seigman (Bill Sikes), Lionel Belmore (Mr. Brownlow), Edouard Trebois ("Artful Dodger") and Aggie Herring (Mrs. Corney).

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE FOX TRAP.

Once upon a time the Fuzzy Fox sat in the doorway of his den, biting his toenails and looking cross.

"What is the matter, Mr. Fox?" asked the Woogle Wolf, who happened to be passing. "Why are you so cross? What is the matter?"

"Matter enough!" grumbled the Fox. "Here it is long past dinner time and I haven't nibbled an ear today—not an ear!"

"No more have I," said the Wolf.

"Yes, but if you hadn't bungled matters and made so many mistakes we'd have had Uncle Wiggily's ears by this time," went on the Fox. "You tried to catch him in your trap, Mr. Wolf, but he got away and now look at us—us with one ear to nibble. Bah!"

"Well, I'm as sorry about it as you are," said the Wolf. "But if you're so smart why don't you try to catch that rabbit?"

"I will!" barked the Fox, just like that—quick. "I will!"

"Hum!" This easier said than done," growled the Wolf. "Uncle Wiggily is not so simple as he looks."

"All the same I shall catch him in a trap," snarled the Fox, "and, just to show that I am not selfish, I will let you nibble half an ear."

"You are very kind," murmured the Wolf. "I shall wait for the ear. Don't tease me, Mr. Fox."

Then the Wolf hid himself off in the woods and the Fox began to make plans for catching Uncle Wiggily in a trap.

"Let me see," said the Fox to himself, still biting his toenails. "I shall think of a way. I shall catch Uncle Wiggily in a molasses trap. They say you can catch more flies with molasses than you can with vinegar. And if you can catch flies with molasses why not rabbits? I'll do it."

The Fox sneaked off to the store and bought a jug of molasses. Then he spilled some outside of his den, making a long, sweet, sticky trail or line of molasses from the outside of his den up inside—the molasses leading to the deep, dark, dismal part of the cave where the Fox hid himself.

"Uncle Wiggily will come along, looking for adventures," said the Fox. "He will see the molasses outside and will follow it up inside, for he will think a barrel of molasses has burst and he'll want to get some for Nurse Jane."

"Then when he follows the molasses trail into my den," whispered the Fox to himself, "I'll grab him. I'll nibble his ears, and show my friend the Wolf that I am smarter than he ever thought of being!"

Surely enough, a little later, Uncle Wiggily started out from his hollow stump bungalow to look for an adventure. He had not hopped very far before, all of a sudden, the bunny rabbit heard on the ground a sad little voice, saying:

"Oh, dear! How cold and hungry I am! I wish some one would warm and feed me."

"Who are you?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"I am a little ant," was the answer. "I came out of my warm house, underground, thinking spring had come, but alas! It hadn't! I am cold and hungry."

"I will put you in my pocket and warm you, little ant," said Uncle Wiggily, "and when I get to my hollow stump bungalow Nurse Jane shall feed you," and, stooping down, he lifted up the cold and hungry ant.

Uncle Wiggily hopped on and soon he reached the den of the Fox. There the bunny rabbit saw the molasses spread on the ground.

"Oh, ho! Some good molasses!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "It is running out of that hole in the side of the hill. There must be a molasses spring. I'll go in and get some."

"Wait!" cried the little ant in his pocket. There may be danger. Let me crawl in first. I am so small I can easily hide from danger should there be any."

So Uncle Wiggily set the little ant, who was now warm on the ground. The ant crawled along the molasses trail into the den of the Fox, and there he saw the Fox waiting, but the Fox did not see the ant. Out crawled the ant to the rabbit.

He spilled some outside of his den.

"Thank you, little ant," said the rabbit. "You saved my ears."

But as for that Fox, oh, how angry he was when he found he hadn't caught the rabbit, even with the molasses. And if the cornstarch pudding doesn't get so stiff that it won't make a bow to the sugar bowl, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the Bob Cat's trap.

CARRIERS' ASSN. PLANNING DANCE

Easter Ball Expected to Swell Benefit Fund of Local Mailmen

The Carriers' Association of the Glendale postoffice is planning a grand Easter ball to be held Monday night, April 2, in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

This will really be the postmen's first annual affair of this nature, and is held by reason of the many calls their association has been having upon its sick fund, the expectation being to swell this fund to a degree where a great deal more good can be accomplished with it.

The committee in charge comprises Sylvester Woods, D. S. (dance specialist), chairman; and Cal Nicholson, A. S. Holcomb, Lloyd Richards, Dave Sullivan and Ed Bliffel.

Jerry Parker's "Jazz Hounds" will encourage the pedal extremities to a phenomenal degree, it is announced.

They Say That

Commercial aerial transportation in the United States is to receive developmental attention at once. A big corporation has been formed in which captains of business and industry are interested, to promote the establishment and maintenance of a network of commercial air routes along the waterways and coasts of the United States.

Development of this nature is highly important as a condition precedent to make the aeronautic strength of the country effective in war. A great peace service, in commercial aerial transportation, would keep a large reserve force of men in training for military service, should this country become engaged in hostilities.

Great Britain, France and Italy are evolving mammoth systems of commercial airways. The British government is proposing a subsidy of $5,000,000 to stimulate and create commercial aviation companies throughout the empire. France and Italy also are encouraging development of aerial trade routes. The United States should not lag behind in this.

To find out how good a man is, give him a trial. We are ready for the test. F. Minden, 322 East Broadway.—Advertisement.

TWO-STEP AMPLIFIER

The Type 215 two-step audio frequency amplifier represents the conventional unit. It has the added feature, however, of a single control switch for both the filament and plate circuits. By means of this switch, so constructed to have high insulation resists, and low electrostatic capacitance, the connections may be shifted so that the amplifier is entirely cut out, one stage only used, or both stages connected. The switch provides positive control including the tube filament circuits; thus, when the switch is set on detector, no tubes are burning, and when set for one stage, only one amplifier tube is burning. Complete control from the detector to two stages of amplification is thus provided without the necessity of changing a single connection.

All of the parts used in this amplifier are of standard high quality parts and are described on the other pages of this bulletin. The panel is removable so that the wiring and separate units may be readily examined. The cover of the cabinet is hinged and has mounted on the inside a wiring diagram of the unit. The filament rheostat is to be adapted for either a four or six volt battery.

THE SHAPE OF YOUR SHOES
Most women when they purchase shoes examine the tops and the style. Few ever turn the shoes around to examine the shape of the soles, yet the real test lies in the quality here.

If you do not make this simple test you cannot tell how well your shoes will wear nor how comfortable they will be. Trying them on coming into favor, as proved by the fact that the smartest shops carry them at the highest prices. Fortunately, however, for the girl with the slim purse, plain sensible shoes can be found at moderate prices, though she may have to search diligently to find them. She can always purchase what are called "walking shoes" or sport shoes which come with moderate heels and fairly wide toes. She can find what the shops call "college girls' shoes," which combine smartness with comfort. I have often wondered why this combination of style and commonsense should be confined to the college girl, but have blessed the fact that these shoes come in sizes up to six and seven so any woman can wear them, and also that they cost several dollars less than a similar quality in a less sensible fashion.

My advice to you, if you value the beauty of your feet and their comfort, is to search out this sort of shoe.

Ruby:—A girl with reddish brown hair should find it such an asset that she should not want to change the shade.

Constant Reader:—Muscles sag because they have lost their firmness. It happens when people are run down or becoming elderly.

If you are near sighted you should be wearing glasses. Since you are avoiding their help and straining the sight, there may lie the cause for this peculiar expression which gives your eyes the appearance of being crossed.

Blonde:—The juice of half of a lemon and a half of a teaspoonful of baking soda to two quarts of water, used for the final rinse after a shampoo, will help to keep light hair from turning to that drab shade. It will help much also if you dry such hair in the sunshine.

In grandmother's day "sulphur and molasses" was freely taken in the spring to clear out the system. Today we achieve the same results by eating plenty of fruits and greens.

One salad a day on the home table is not overdoing the matter. To be sure a daily salad may represent a little extra trouble on the part of the housekeeper—but what woman will not gladly go to a little extra trouble to improve the health of her family? So, from now on, Reader Friends, we are going to have a salad-a-day campaign in my daily menus. They are necessary. They will make all the difference between vitality and a lack of vitality in the health of your family. For greens contain those properties—vitamins—which are so essential to health.

Vitamins are also to be found in abundance in whole, unrefined grains, such as whole wheat, and brown, uncooked rice. For this reason my daily menus in the future will call for whole wheat bread for lunch (white bread makes better toast, so may be used for breakfast). In grains the vitamins lie close to the husk's outer layer, and this outer layer is what the modern milling process tears away. Tomorrow I will give a recipe for whole wheat bread which does not require kneading.

Chicken Puffs will be called for in Thursday's menu, this week, to use up the left-overs from Wednesday night's Fricassee Chicken (a guest dinner). The puffs are made as follows: Butter the "wells" of a cup cake pan. No pick apart left-over pieces of the chicken. There should be one cupful for this recipe. Stir into the chicken-bits the yolks of four eggs, one-half teaspoon of salt, one tablespoon of flour, and, finally, the stiffly-beaten whites of four eggs. Drop the batter into nine greased wells which measure two inches across the bottom (a cup cake pan with smaller wells will, of course, make more puffs) and slip the pan into a moderate oven to bake for 25 minutes. They will be high and brown when done. Serve hot. Four eggs may seem a good many to use, in a recipe, but they are not too many when one considers that they "piece out" the left-over chicken and make it unnecessary to buy meat for Thursday's dinner.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

IMPORTANCE OF PROTEIN

It is now thought that from about 10 to 15 per cent of the normal diet is the correct amount of protein to be included. It used to be thought that considerably more was needed. As protein is the only food that contains the element nitrogen, a vital element needed in building and repairing tissues, it is highly important that a sufficient amount be consumed.

There seems to be some confusion among you who are my reducing followers about the amount of protein you should have. That is the reason for this article today.

You should not lower your protein intake. For instance, if you are on a reducing diet of 1200 C's, you must have the same number of protein calories that you would have if you were on a maintenance diet of, say, 2200 calories. In other words, you should have from 250 to 350 calories a day of protein. If you were to take 10 per cent of the reducing diet of 1200 C's that would only give you 120 C's, which is not considered sufficient.

You are to cut down on your percentages of fats and starches and sugars, but not on your protein, remember that. (Unless, of course, you have been having too much.) Milk has been proved to contain the most perfect protein and you should have some milk in your diet. Skim milk or butter-milk preferably, because you can have twice the amount of skim milk for the same number of calories that you can have of whole milk, and skim milk has nearly twice the amount of protein in it.

I shall repeat the table containing the approximate number of protein calories in 100-C portions of food today because I can see from some of your letters that you need to pay a little more attention to your protein intake. As I have told you so often, it is not sufficient that you get the sufficient number of calories. You must have the right kind of calories.

We cannot measure two very important elements in food by calories—the essential salts and vitamins—so you must see that the foods that are supplying 1200 C's of energy and protein needs also contain your vitamins and essential salts. If you include in your diet every day a large green salad and some cooked greens, especially spinach, some fruits, whole wheat bread and milk, you need not worry about the vitamins and essential salts.

There is only one intelligent way to reduce. That is, to know food values and to eat less than your system needs for its energy so that the stored fat will be called upon to supply the energy needs—this combined with some 10 or 15 minutes quick exercise every day. But, I repeat, you must supply in your calories sufficient calories of protein and foods containing sufficient essential salts and vitamins.

PROTEIN CALORIES IN 100-C PORTIONS OF FOOD

In 100 calories bread, one slice (W. W. the highest), 12 to 16 calories protein.

In 100 calories cooked cereals, small cup (oatmeal the highest), 10 to 18 calories protein.

In 100 calories rice, one small cup, 10 calories protein.

In 100 calories macaroni, one small cup, 15 calories protein.

In 100 calories whole milk, five ounces, 20 calories protein.

In 100 calories skim and butter-milk, ten ounces, 35 calories protein.

In 100 calories cheese (cottage cheese), 75 calories protein.

In 100 calories eggs, one and one-third, 36 calories protein.

In 100 calories very lean meat and fish, two to three ounces, 50 to 75 calories protein.

In 100 calories peanuts, ten to twelve double, 20 calories protein.

In 100 calories almonds, twelve, 13 calories protein.

In 100 calories walnuts, four to six, 10 calories protein.

In 100 calories beans, one-third cup average, 20 calories protein.

In 100 calories green peas, three-fourths cup, 28 calories protein.

In 100 calories corn, one-third cup, 11 calories protein.

In 100 calories onions, three to four medium, 12 calories protein.

In 100 calories potatoes, one medium, 11 calories protein.

In 100 calories tomatoes, one pound, 16 calories protein.

In 100 calories, with the exception of berries, currants and rhubarb, which have 10 calories of protein, fresh fruits have only two-fifths calories of protein per 100 calories.

Sentiment and Tommy

TODAY'S SHORT STORY BY Ad Schuster

When Mrs. Tommy Mason discovered what Tommy was doing she smiled a bit ruefully, but with understanding.

"He is just another sentimental Tommy," she mused, "and is doing no more than flatter a belief he is still young and attractive." There were tears in the wife's eyes, but she lifted her chin bravely. "That's what he is, too, and will always be—young and attractive. All the same, this has got to stop."

Tommy Mason, life of Crawford, a suburban city, was enjoying a flirtation, a harmless rehearsal of scenes of his youth. To him it was so glorious an adventure he buried the squirmings of his conscience under a weight of argument.

"Trouble is," said Tommy, "a man settles down to work. Maybe he gets fat, not exactly fat, but takes on weight, and people list him as an old-timer, out of the race. Nobody, except his wife, pays any attention to him. Now, with me it's different," for Mrs. Edith Jones—she who was Theodosia Winter in the old days in Minden—had moved to Crawford with her husband and the two had taken up the old story, first in reminiscence and then with a half-guilty sense that they were flirting outrageously.

Tommy knew he loved his wife and Theodosia was certain there was no man on earth like Edith. Yet, in youth these two had been sweethearts, they had much in common and a bit of excitement was not to be refused. Mrs. Tommy knew her husband well enough not to be worried seriously, and then Crawford tongues began to talk.

"I think," said Tommy's wife, "I will put an end to this." And she spent a half hour on the telephone.

"Tommy," the wife said one evening, "I have discovered that the new people in town, the Joneses, are ones we ought to know. He was a sort of friend of mine in college. I have invited them to dinner tomorrow." Tommy nodded but did not lift his eyes from the salad. He had been going to cultivate the Joneses.

The meeting of Tommy and Theodosia in the Mason home was a bit restrained, but that of Mrs. Jones was not.

"I love bright colors," writes a Letter Friend, "and I am often tempted to buy a bright colored hat or dress because I love them so and because they are becoming. But I have to wear my clothes a long time and I am sure to get tired of the bright colored dress before it is old. Besides, if you have a dress like that and keep wearing it people are more conscious of the fact that you haven't had a new dress for a long time than if you wear something inconspicuous. And yet I get tired of wearing dull colors all the time, and they are not so becoming. What would you do?"

What does nature do? Against background of duller color, she flings here and there some flash of bright color.

How Nature Does It

Look at her flowers, vivid dots of blue and purple and yellow against the soft background of the most restful color in existence.

Against her birds, how smart is the downy woodpecker with his rakesh top-knot of scarlet, how piquing to the imagination the red banner of color against the solid immensity of that background.

Isn't nature's way the wisest way? Isn't it well to have the dresses you are going to wear for a long season background dresses, and to get your note of gay color by the use of some accessory such as a string of beads or earrings.

The Rainbow Outdone

There never was such a vague as there is at present for such accessories and consequently never such an alluring range of choice. You can have a string of beads or a scarf not merely in any color of the rainbow, but in a hundred colors the rainbow never knew.

And thus you get not only the joy of bright colors without displaying so much of any one that you tire the eyes of the beholder, but also get the opportunity to change from one color to another.

An ideal background dress is one in soft neutral shade. Blue or brown or black are very good, but even better is one of the soft shades in between. Against these fling your scarf of yellow or orange or heliotrope or red and you have a color harmony that delights the color sensitive eye.

I went shopping with a friend one day and she turned down a very pretty dress of brown with a touch of orange embroidery. "It's pretty," she said, "but I could never wear any other color with it." Instead she bought a dress of a soft neutral brown with a very plain front and no trimming except self-colored stitching. "It is the only dress I shall have this winter," she said, "and I want to be able to vary the trimming." And so she does—one night she wears coral beads, another an orange scarf and again a yellow scarf.

As for hats—a hat of any bright color limits what one wears with it pretty strictly. If one cannot have several hats one is absolutely forced to stick to the neutral colors. But I do not for think this is much of a deprivation, for, to my mind, it is only one woman in ten who looks well in a bright colored hat.

SPORTS

INDIANS BEATEN BY PICO STARS

Locals Put Up Great Game
And Deserved to Win
Sunday's Contest

The Glendale "Indians" lost to the Pico Stars by the slim margin of one run yesterday afternoon at the Park and San Fernando grounds, in a fast game featured by the fine hurling of the local boys' pitcher, Slim Harris, the final tally being 3 to 2.

With every break in the luck against him, Slim hurled his squad to within an inch of victory, in what was admitted as the best game of the season, to date.

Another outstanding feature of this game was the perfect fielding of Acosta, the Indians' star third-sacker, this eagle-eyed baseman not only reaching up among the stars to pull down a scorching liner, but grabbing several hot ones out of the dust in handy fashion. He also knocked out a clean-cut two-base hit.

Deserved to Win
Manager Walt Helder, playing out in the central gardens, put his spectacular tractor in high gear and began tearing up the sod about the time Slim's first twisty one went steaming over the griddle. And in the fourth session he volplaned in to second just in time to get the ends of his fingers securely attached to a high pop-up.

As a whole, as well as individually, the Indians played wonderful ball, and deserved to win. The large crowd of fans were kept on their toes from start to finish, voicing their praise of the playing repeatedly.

This is how it looks on paper:

Siki Did Not Lose His Title, Is Claim

LONDON, March 19.—According to The Evening News today, Battling Siki did not lose his title as light-heavyweight champion of Europe when he was beaten by Mike McTigue Saturday, because the articles for the fight did not stipulate the weight at which the fighters should enter the ring.

Practically all the London newspapers today approved the verdict of the Dublin referee. The Daily Sketch was the only paper that believed that Siki had a shade on McTigue and should have been awarded the decision.

McTigue's next fight will be with Georges Carpentier or with Todd, in London, in May, according to The Evening Standard.

Rickard Will Offer Contest to McTigue

NEW YORK, March 19.—Tex Rickard declared today that he intended to cable an offer to Mike McTigue, new light heavyweight champion, to meet Gene Tunney, the American champion, in a bout to a decision during the impending outdoor season.

Most excuses are lies wrapped up in tissue paper.

In The Spotlight Of Sport

By Wood Cowan

Frankie Genaro is the new American flyweight champion. He is a sturdy little Italian and about the classiest thumper that division has developed in this country for some time.

Smart and a straight hitter, a good boxer, with a corking left, and a past master in the art of feinting, just about sums up Genaro's ability—and then add toughness, for this scrapper is as tough as an old boot.

Genaro has a mighty fine ring record. He has lost but one decision in all his ring experience. Pete Zivic beat him in an amateur tournament at Madison Square Garden, but a short time later Frankie reversed the decision. He was a member of the American Olympic team and at Antwerp swept everything before him.

He is the first amateur champion to win a professional boxing title during the last twenty years. There are many former amateurs in the game, and some of them have climbed pretty high, but the little Italian is the only one to reach the top.

The first time he met Villa, Frankie won the decision. Their next meeting was in Jersey, and again the Italian demonstrated his superiority.

By taking away the crown from as classy a thumper as Villa, Genaro certainly proved that he stands supreme in his division. Should he go to England and be fortunate enough to get Jimmie Wilde into the ring with him, it's pretty certain that he'd annex the world title.

Genaro is 22 years old, weighs 110, stands 5 feet 1 inch high, and has a punch like a lightweight.

Bill Brennan Much Improved, Report

NEW YORK, March 19.—The condition of Bill Brennan, Chicago heavyweight, was much improved today. Brennan has been confined to a hospital since his knockout by Luis Firpo last Monday night.

It is easier to sit in the lap of luxury than to stand up and be a man.

NEW YORK, March 19.—Evidence that bad blood is accumulating in thick, dark clots, between Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen, champion golfers, is furnished by local professionals who have been in more or less intimate touch with the gentlemen in question. The cause, however, seems to be a bit vague.

When Hagen was national champion and Sarazen a cad golfer who counted it a good day when he finished in the first run, they contrived to observe the amenities. It was quite all right, also, when Sarazen won his first open title at Skoki last summer. But there is an end to everything, including the speeches of W. J. Bryan. It came in the two-day special match between Sarazen, open champion of the United States, and Hagen, open champion of Great Britain. All was well the first day at Highland, where Sarazen, playing over his home course, finished the game.

He came from behind over the final holes and gained a sensational victory. The entente cordiale vanished simultaneously.

They went their separate ways, but met again in California during the winter season just coming to an end. There they are said to have resumed the business of mutual recrimination, with the result that Hagen resumed the challenge of another 72-hole match. Inability to agree upon anything, including details of the match, caused negotiations to be dropped.

Whereat the claim is made that Hagen and Sarazen will never meet as champions, unless the meeting occurs in some remote spot where differences of opinion may be settled without interference.

THE KNOCK OUT VICTORY OF THE South American champion Louis Firpo over Bill Brennan brings the foreigner right into line as a prospect for a match with Jack Dempsey. Apart from that angle, however, it brings to mind that in all his battles old man Bill Brennan has met the best of the heavyweights and only two men, Dempsey and Firpo have ever hung the K. O. on Brennan.

Dempsey first knocked Brennan out in 1918 when he did the trick in six rounds. Then on December 14, 1920 the champion—he was not champion in 1918—again K. O'd Brennan, but this time it took twelve rounds to turn the trick. Now comes Firpo and he also K. O'd Brennan in the same round that Dempsey did. At that Brennan was a much better fighter two years ago than he was the other night when Firpo got him in the ring.

The fight was evidently a rough and tumble affair and while Firpo showed plenty of brute strength and had some pepper behind some of his blows it is evident that he cannot hit as hard as Dempsey. If he could Brennan would never have been able to stay twelve rounds with the rain of blows that Firpo connected with his chin and other vulnerable points.

The final blow that settled Brennan was a hard one to the ribs and Brennan succumbed more to fatigue and lack of condition rather than to the actual damage of that one blow. This brings to mind that all the great fighters have specialized on one or other punch to put over their K. O. victory.

In their famous fight at Mississippi City February 7, 1882 John L. Sullivan and Paddy Ryan had a bloody battle for nine rounds and it was then that Sullivan brought over a right to the jaw that brought victory.

Jim Corbett also used the right to the jaw with telling effect September 7, 1892 when he K. O'd the same John L. Sullivan. Corbett was next to relinquish the title, and this time Bob Fitzsimmons introduced the blow that has since become world famous—the solar plexus, or in other words a left hook to the stomach.

While Fitzsimmons left hooked his way to championship to the stomach, Jim Jeffries finished Fitz with a left hook to the jaw, this being at Coney Island, June 9, 1899. Then Jack Johnson came along and won the title when Jeffries threw in the sponge at Reno, in the fifteenth round after Johnson had rained rights and lefts all over Jeff.

Then the right to the jaw made its reappearance and this time Jess Willard was the man who did this when he sent Johnson to the canvas at Havana, April 5, 1915. Jack Dempsey has proved himself a two-fisted fighter and this gave Willard so many rights and lefts at Toledo that Willard collapsed in the fourth round.

Undoubtedly the next contest for the world title will be between Jack Dempsey and Firpo. What blow will be used to gain the victory? It seems a moral certainty that a K. O. will be registered one way or the other, but unless Firpo shows great improvement, the South American will be the one to go to the canvas.

QUITE RIGHT
An Irishman who was signing articles on board a ship began to write his name with his right hand, then, changing the pen to his left, finished it.
"So you can write with either hand, Pat?" asked the officer.
"Yes, sir," replied Pat, "when I was a boy me father (rist his soul!) always said to me, 'Pat, learn to cut yer finger nails wid your left hand, for some day ye might lose your right.'"

RAWLINS TO BE TRADED, REPORT

Johnny to Lose His Berth
With New York Giants,
Rumored Around

NEW YORK, March 19.—Johnny Rawlins is to be waited away on a trade wind, if reports around these particular parts are to be credited. John is still quite a ball player and might prove as handy as a spare tire to the Giants this season, but McGraw is said to have other plans.

He is quite enamored of the ability of a young shortstop named Travis Jackson and it is claimed that, if it comes to a show-down between Travis and John, the latter will draw a one-way ticket elsewhere.

In support of this belief, rumor mongers say Rawlins has been named to accompany the Giant second team on a harrowing tour of southern hamlets, and Jackson elected to ride the cushions with the first team.

Then and Now
It is significant that Ralph Shinnery enjoyed the distinction of being a regular on the training

Oregon Aggie Co-ed to Be Chemical Engineer

CORVALLIS, Ore., March 19.—Helen Stedman of Corvallis, will be the first co-ed in Oregon agricultural college to be graduated in chemical engineering and is the only woman registered in that department. She is accustomed to the unusual. While attending the University of Wisconsin she swam three miles across Lake Mendota on a wager. While abroad two years ago Miss Stedman attended Southampton college in England. She prefers the American college, saying the English co-eds have few interests outside their school work.

It is the easiest thing in the world for a man to believe all the nice things he sees in the newspapers about himself.

trip last year. He is considered quite an irregular now. The passing of Rawlins, if ever, will depend on several conditions. If, for example, Heinie Groh leaves some doubt as to whether his world's series comeback lacked permanency, McGraw could not or would not give up Rawlins at the point of a gun.

As a matter of fact, Rawlins will depart only in the event that no pitcher is developed who can take a day-to-day turn with Nehf, Scott and McQuillan. The Giants' only tangible weakness is questionable pitching and if Rawlins is to be tossed on the market it will be with the understanding that the club wishing to do business for him must be willing to part with a pitcher of some considerable standing in the community.

California has recommended the forfeiture by Stanford of those bouts in which negroes entered rather than the cancellation of the entire competition. Naturally, Cardinal boxers would resent any such action. They would feel that California was entering negroes merely to win the meet unfairly and they would be denied the opportunity of meet-

The WORLD OVER By FRANKLIN B. MORSE PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

The recent refusal of the Stanford university boxing team to compete against the University of California in the ring, because the latter institution included a negro in one of the weight divisions, is explained as follows in an editorial in the Stanford daily paper:

"Boxing is a dangerous sport for collegiate competition. It has become connected in its history outside of colleges with the roughest element, and for that reason must be guarded closely in order to maintain the standard of other sports. Last year's experience proved that participation of colored men does not help in keeping the sport on that level. The existence of race prejudice cannot be denied, and whether or not it is justified, promoting bouts between men of different color can do nothing but antagonize that feeling. There is not the close contact in other branches of athletics and the personal element does not enter so strongly."

Professional boxers have taken both sides of the controversy. John L. Sullivan would not go into the ring with a negro. Other champions have had no scruples of this sort. The public, in the past, has allowed the title holder to exercise his choice in the matter with the yellow races and the negro is merely several shades darker.

The only objection to the Stanford editorial is the ascribing to California of a very mean motive for the inclusion of colored boxers and Californians resent the imputation made by Stanford as to the reason for having negroes on the team. California holds that all of its students are on an equal footing and that if a negro, through merit, wins a place on an athletic team, there is no valid reason for not allowing him to compete in the interests of his alma mater.

ing men of their own class."

While it was thought a horrid net would be stirred up by the action of Stanford in canceling a competition just a couple of days before the event was to take place for the reason mentioned, there has been practically no discussion regarding the matter, probably due to the idea that it is best to let the matter drop. It is one which has two sides and past history shows that it is a controversy that never will be settled.

What is Whole Milk or sweet cream Butter?

How Is It Different From Other Butter? WHY IS IT BETTER? WHERE CAN I GET IT?

It is butter made from Whole Milk brought by fast motor trucks direct to the creamery from the farm. Here the Sweet Cream is separated directly into the churn—and is turned into rich pats of golden butter—all within a few hours from the time of milking.

It is absolutely clean, pure and wholesome and free from all impurities.

Butter experts will tell you it is the Ideal Butter—that it meets the most exacting standards of pure food experts and housewives.

Here in Southern California the ONE such Butter is—CLOVER GLEN.

In addition to being made of SWEET CREAM separated from WHOLE MILK at the creamery

—CLOVER GLEN BUTTER also has the advantage of coming from a dairy country where the herds are grass-fed the year round. And again the butter expert will tell you there is NO BUTTER TO EQUAL that from the "grass-fed herds." In all parts of the world grass-fed whole milk butter is given the highest scoring—it commands the top market everywhere. But the supply is very limited.

Fortunately, YOU can enjoy a butter of this SUPERB QUALITY if you simply insist on CLOVER GLEN. It is advisable to leave a standing order with your grocer as there is not enough CLOVER GLEN BUTTER—made of whole milk—to supply every family in this city. Be sure that you get your pound from your grocer today.

SOLONS BACK ON JOB AFTER TRIP

Reapportionment Supporters Claim Gain in Fight During Recess

Special to The Evening News
SACRAMENTO, March 14.—California's legislature is back on the job after three days and nights of pleasure such as only the Bay Cities can provide, according to local members who enjoyed the trip to Berkeley, San Francisco and Oakland.

In Oakland yesterday the solons and their wives and friends were taken over the skyline drive which presents a panorama of San Francisco Bay—a picture never to be forgotten. It was a glorious Southern California day and one could not help but feel at home whizzing around the hillsides in a motor car.

Aside from the budget, which will continue to be heard for the rest of the session, reapportionment seemed to have gained materially as the result of the southern legislators getting more closely acquainted with their brethren from other parts of the state.

Reputable Smith
Conservation was caused by Supervisor Eugene Smith' statement at a dinner Saturday afternoon at the Cliff house which gave unqualified support to the South's claim for additional representation. Of course, the San Francisco solons were quick to repudiate his statement as significant of their attitude.

Senator A. H. Breed's motor bill comes up for hearing this week and a large lobby is at the capitol to protect their individual interests.

The man who knows nothing insists on letting it be known.

Undying Idea Is Topic At Methodist Church

morning hour. Dr. Rasmus said: "The greatest cemetery in the universe is where purely human ideas lie buried beyond all possibility of resurrection. It is true that whenever God starts a great thinker out upon his mission then the human centuries quake and eternal destinies are made."

"But that is only when God gives to a man a great idea. When every purely human concept has withered and is forgotten, when the very physical universe shall be rolled together as a scroll still there will remain the scarlet undying idea of the cross. God seems to have written it everywhere in the history of races by their symbolisms in worship. It was not an invention of yesterday but reaches as far back as the eternities past and as far into the future as the eternities to come involving the destinies of a race. "Deep seated and far reaching as human nature touched by sin He has written it into the need of man. There is but one meaning to that transaction on Calvary—man redeemed by the death of Jesus the God. Try to get rid of it as you may, the cross is the throne of the universe and upon its shoulders man only can be lifted to purity, to peace, to endless happiness."

GOV'T. REALIZES GROWTH OF CITY

Glendale to Be Favored in Maintenance of Post Office Service

Glendale's growth is acknowledged in a telegram that has been received by Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson from Congressman Walter F. Lineberger, in which the latter says that the postoffice has decided, on account of the unusual growth of this city, to give it greater consideration than almost all other cities, in the distribution of funds for the maintenance of the postal service during the present period of refreshment. Congressman Lineberger has been assured by the department that it will go the limit to aid Glendale, but the most rigid economy must be observed at every turn to keep within the money at the disposal of the postoffice branch of the government.

Local organizations that wired to Washington regarding the proposed cut in the personnel of the Glendale postoffice have been told that there is no intention to reduce the regular force, and this, it is declared, has given rise to an impression that no cuts were to be made in the number of employees in the local office. It is pointed out, however, that the auxiliary carriers and clerks who were laid off are not actually considered a part of the regular force until they have received their appointments from the postoffice department. These extra clerks and carriers are men who have passed the civil service examinations and have been advised by the government that they are eligible for appointment, but until such appointment comes they are kept on the auxiliary list.

The nineteen men on the Glendale auxiliary list have been working full time and overtime since they were notified of their eligibility, and in some cases the men have been awaiting appointments since June, 1921, working here every day just as though they had been regularly appointed. The distinction between these auxiliary clerks and carriers and the regular employees is that the former can be dropped from the payrolls when an emergency such as the present one arises, whereas the regular appointees cannot be so dropped.

The auxiliary staff is absolutely necessary, Postmaster Jackson explains, to maintain the efficiency of the service here, and while they are not actually members of the regular force, they are as much a part of the local staff as if they had been definitely appointed.

The prospects for the extension of the city delivery after July 1 are bright, according to information reaching Postmaster Jackson.

Two Killed, Five Hurt As Cars Leap Cliffs

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19.—Two were killed and five injured in over-Sunday automobile accidents in which three machines leaped high cliffs. Near Montara a machine driven by William E. Murphy, San Francisco druggist, plunged over a 200-foot precipice, killing Mrs. Alice Romero and seriously injuring Murphy and four others as the car turned end over end down the steep cliff.

Rex Robinson was killed when the machine he was driving hurtled 200 feet over an embankment twelve miles south of La Honda.

Seven passengers in the third car had miraculous escapes from death when a tree caught the car as it swerved from the highway and saved it from a sheer 100-foot drop near Livermore.

THOUGHT SOUNDS KNELL OF KINGS

Growth of Knowledge Leads To Free Expression of Man's Ideas

Creative thought, the magic wand by which one's life or the whole world may be changed, was the theme of Dr. Ameen V. Fareed's second lecture on "Creative Thought," Sunday morning, in the Masonic temple, 232 South Brand boulevard. "In world history," stated Dr. Fareed, "there has always been a keynote which the tendency of the times has struck. The age-old rule of wealth and power made kings and serfs, but as light began to dawn through erudition, when learning was extended to the masses, the rule of power received its death knell. Now the aristocracy of ideas is receiving much attention, and never before has an idea become so much the symbol of greatness as at the present time."

"The ability to create original ideas has been greatly hampered because freedom of thought has been so restricted in many countries, but finding one's center—the Higher Self—will loosen the fetters and break the bondage, thus giving free expression to the soul through the birth of new ideas along any line of work."

"Start with the God thought, the altruistic idea (for the vision of our dreams begets of its own kind), and visualization must precede all material manifestation. Man is heir to the great riches of creative thought, to the extent that he is able to manifest that power and bring forth his heritage."

Road to Success

"Everything begins in the invisible realm of thought. Look around and see how an idea rules nations, or how a thought has changed the whole map of the world. Man has the power to create and enlarge upon nature, although the average person has not given much attention to that faculty. The capacity to tap the great reservoir within one's self spells success in any field of endeavor, to all who cultivate these higher powers."

"That thought is the greatest motive force in the world has been demonstrated by man building the submarine and the aeroplane, for in his normal habitat man is not able to fly or pass under the water at will. It was creative thought that gave these great inventions to the world."

"Enhance your ability to create," concluded Dr. Fareed, "for no indolent vacancy of thought ever accomplishes anything. Let us have an ideal. Life without an ideal is no life at all. Know that the vision of your dreams can be realized through the power of well-directed thought. The mind is the great lever that moves all things and the arrival of the Thinker is anticipated and waited for by the world."

Dr. Fareed will speak next Sunday morning on "The Psychology of Efficiency."

Y. M. C. A. Boys Attend Ontario Conference

Rex C. Kelley, a local Y. M. C. A. executive, and four Glendale Y. M. C. A. boys journeyed over to Ontario for Saturday and Sunday to attend a Y. M. C. A. Christian Callings conference. The boys were Ernest Shackley, Paul Cunningham, Paul Edmonds and Arlin McCormick. The conference was held in the Methodist church and grammar school and Arlin McCormick was appointed treasurer.

The purpose of the conference is to interest boys in Christian professions and their opportunities. Lloyd Lorber, recently returned from India, was one of the chief speakers, speaking on athletics.

St. Mark's Men's Club To Meet Wednesday

Final notice is called to the meeting on Wednesday night, March 21, at 8 o'clock of all the men of St. Mark's church, in the guild hall of the church. W. N. Howard is to be the speaker of the evening.

It is hoped that every member will be present, as this is to be a fine address, it is stated.
